

Photo Album

I have set up a login-free instance of my photo album that I set up to authenticate through Authelia. This is not available to everyone with a login here, but it is managed through AD like everything else. This photo album is done with piGallery2, and was exactly what I wanted out of a photo gallery. It just indexes a single root folder where all the photos live. Since this is how I've always organized my photos, this works for me. I have them in chronological order grouped by events or just years. This uses Matt Drive to sync with OneDrive on my laptop to make sure the source directory of the photos stays fresh.
